TO MARINA.

I have a sister, charming girl!
A gem is she to me;
Marina is the name she bears,
Because upon the sea
The light of day she first beheld;
She's not a mermaid's bride,
But a fairy little thing is she,
A bird from ocean's tide.

I recollect one Sabbath morn
(It was but four years old)
A story which upon the deck
To me the sailors told:
Old Neptune in the night had come,
In a stone boat they said,
And left a sister small for me
Within my mother's care.

The crew went out in search of gain,
They had a lucky trip—
Prosperous were they beyond all hope,
Ah, yeal for when the ship
Came safely into port it brought
A prize to be preferred
Beyond all others ever found—
My own sweet Ocean Bird!

O yes, 'tis true, if all the wealth
Lied by the mighty waves
In palaces beneath the seas,
Shells from the ocean caves,
And pearls and flashing gems—if these
Were mine, upon my word,
I'd sooner lose them all than her,
My own sweet Ocean Bird!

ROCKFORD, ILL., April 1857. R. H. T.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river has risen altogether up to last evening 6 inches at the city wharf and 18 inches at Portland. There were then 3 feet water by the mark, but boats drawing nearly 4 feet water could pass through. There are now 5 feet water between this and Cincinnati, and there will be 4 feet out when the rise reaches Cairo.

The Virginia.—This steamer, commanded by Captain Charles F. Reynolds, W. H. Armstrong clerk, will leave Cairo for New Orleans after the arrival of the cars to-morrow. Passengers taking to-day's or to-night's train will reach Cairo in time for the V. She is one of the mail packets, and a splendid boat.

The Fanny Bullet.—Captain Dunham leaves for Cairo to-day to bring the Fanny Bullet out. She is just off the dock, and has been newly painted and renovated. The Judges are the clerks. The Fanny will leave Cairo for New Orleans on Tuesday.

The Empire did not leave for Owensboro last evening, but she will go positively to-day.

The new steamer Arkansas, Capt. Bennett, will leave for New Orleans direct to-day.

The Gen. Pike, Capt. Fuller, will leave for New Orleans to-morrow.

The Princess, Capt. Aikin, will leave for Cairo and Memphis to-day.

For St. Louis.—The Grapeshot leaves for St. Louis to-day in command of Captain Lampton. She has been in the dry-dock, undergoing thorough repair. She is newly painted from stem to stern, and her cabins and staterooms are well and tastefully furnished. She is of very light draught, and will go out with little detention. Captain Lampton is well known and very popular in the trade.

Mr. N. L. Johnson, the polite clerk of the fine steamer Tempest, has favored us with an interesting memorandum. It will be seen from it that the Tempest made a remarkably quick trip. She is one of the best low-water packets afloat. She will leave again on Monday.

It will be seen from the advertisement in another column that the time for the arrival and departure of the Lexington cars will be changed on Monday next. The morning train will leave here at 6 o'clock, A. M.; the evening train at 2:30 P. M., and the accommodation at 4 P. M. The morning train will arrive from Lexington at 11:15 A. M.; the evening train at 6:40 P. M., and the accommodation at 9 A. M.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Of a young man by the name of John Grubb, who left this city about three years since, and the last time he was heard of, he was living in Mobile, Ala. Any one who can give any information of him will receive the thanks of the family by addressing his brother, James Grubb, Louisville, Ky. Mobile and Southern papers will please notice.

We are gratified to be able to state that Messrs. John Smith & Co., who suspended on Thursday, will resume on Monday next. We also learn that in the statement of the assets of this house the private property of the members of the firm was not included.

We learn from the Frankfort Commonwealth that the receipts of the Kentucky Colonization Society, from August 26th to September 30th, were $463.

One of the Smith family was arrested yesterday by officer Versant on the charge of passing a raised bank note.

The dairy of Mr. Nelson Anderson, on Magazine street, N. O., was destroyed by fire on the 25th. Loss $30,000.

DAVIES COUNTY FAIR.—The citizens of Owensboro are making extensive preparations for this fair, which commences at that place on Tuesday next, as will be seen by the following extract from a business letter from a gentleman of Owensboro:

As the Davies County Agricultural and Mechanical Association holds its fourth annual fair, at the fair grounds near this place, next week, commencing October 6th and continuing three days, it might be interesting to some of your readers to know what else is in store for the attendants of the fair. Beside the attractions of the fair itself, which are many, the ladies of the Methodist Church intend giving a supper in the new court house, the proceeds of which are to go to the purchasing of a bell for this church, and from the preparations that are being made and the known energy of those who have it in charge, a pleasant place cannot be found than this to while away in pleasure a few passing hours.

A Theatrical Society has lately been formed in our town, who will make their first appearance by performing "The Lady of Lyons," during the fair. So our friends from abroad, who intend honoring us with their presence, need have no fears but that their time will be passed pleasantly.

Mr. Prentice's lecture at this place more than realized the expectations of his warm and numerous friends. All were fully convinced that he was not only a "poet, scholar, and statesman," but also a patriot, with the fires of '76 burning on the altar of his heart.

THE DUTY OF THE BANKS.

If there was ever a period in our commercial history requiring calmness and prudence and yet firmness and courage it is now. The banks have a great, a solemn responsibility resting upon them. While they should resolutely refuse to encourage any new expenditure, or any new pecuniary obligation whatever, unless based upon an immediate shipment of the produce of the country, the forwarding of which to market is the only means, except shipment of specie, to bring down the rate of exchange on New York, they should, nevertheless, to the full extent of their ability, aid the business men of the city in meeting their engagements. In estimating this ability, prudent and wise but firm and courageous, and not irresolute and timid counsels, should prevail. If the banks sustain themselves, as sustain themselves they must or fail, they must sustain the sound and solvent business men, from whose business during years past bank profits have been gained. The banks should expect, they should prepare, and not be afraid to lose a little specie in the effort to preserve the commercial credit of this city from prostration and from utter ruin. Gold is not now the rare and precious commodity it was a few years since. It is now an article of commerce, bought and sold in the market at fluctuating prices, like cotton or wheat or any other product of the soil, and if our banks do lose a few hundred thousand dollars in the next thirty days, they can well afford to lose and may easily replace it.

In this connection we cannot do better than to adopt the excellent advice of the New York Journal of Commerce in an article commenting upon the prevailing crisis. The Journal of Commerce is very high financial authority, and in this respect is much relied upon in New York and in this city by merchants and business men. It says:

The public mind is too much excited to consider calmly the causes which have led to the present trouble, and any argument upon this subject would be wasted. All eyes are seeking a remedy for existing burdens, and to this we direct our attention. There is as much actual wealth in the country as there was two months ago; and the great want now felt in every department of trade and finance is confidence. Whatever tends to destroy or even to weaken public confidence at such a crisis is in the highest degree reprehensible; while the efforts of all who have the interests of the country at heart should be directed to sustain and increase it. We know that some are for "letting everything go," arguing that this is the only cure for the evil, and that, if the fire is not allowed to exhaust itself, the embers will be continually smouldering, and liable to break out again in open flame. This may be true to a certain extent. When the life is in no danger, and the question is only one of cure, it may be best to probe to the bottom of every ulcer, and to spare no proud flesh that protrudes the healing process. But when the question is one of life, the probe and the caustic may not be the most available remedies. Such a sifting of credits as shall throw out the unworthy and insolvent is desirable, but the total destruction of credit must prostrate every business man and uproot every moneyed institution in the country.

In securing the confidence necessary to the salvation of the interests now endangered, there is necessary not only a concert of action among the managers of our moneyed institutions but also a hearty cooperation and a mutual good understanding between them and the mercantile community. It will not do for any bank officer to say that his bank shall stand, although every customer fail; for his bank could not survive through the day if his depositors acted upon such a spirit. Nor will it do for the merchants to grow reckless, and say that, if the banks will not "carry them through," they will make no struggles to meet their obligations and sit down in despair. Courage, cooperation, and concert of action will achieve wonders, even in the face of adverse circumstances; while a selfish grasping after the means of personal safety at the risk of endangering the security of others will only hasten the common ruin. The banks and the merchants must stand shoulder to shoulder. The very attitude has in it such a strengthening effect that it will give courage to the faint-hearted. The banks have now avowed their willingness to meet the community in such an effort.

By a circular from the leading banks, published in our money article, it will be seen that the necessity of such a movement has become apparent. Let the merchants meet this overture in the same spirit. Let every one, no matter how narrow the circle of his influence, act upon the same principle. At the first appearance of impending danger, selfishness cries out, "Every man for himself." But when it is seen that the result of such selfishness must be the hastening of the general catastrophe, even the instinct of self-preservation will lead men to herd together for mutual help and defense. There was never a time when true heroism had a nobler field than now. We do not mean that any should carry his benevolence so far as to sacrifice himself for the common good; but we do insist that when the individual weal is so bound up with the common safety, that they cannot be separated without violence to both, then the maxim, "every man for himself," cannot even have the glitter of success to relieve it from infamy. We are convinced that if the unity of action thus recommended can be obtained, there will be no farther failures among solvent houses, and that the worst of the trouble will be over.

LATER FROM MEXICO.—Dates from Vera Cruz are as late as due—to the 16th from the capital. The Federal Congress met on the 14th, in what is called the preparatory session; 45 members present.

The Siglo announces that the colonization contract entered into by Gen. Goicouria with the Mexican government will at once be carried into effect, and that the colonists are expected to arrive the beginning of October.

According to the Trait d'Union, one of the assassins of San Vicente, recently arrested, has made important revelations concerning this celebrated event, out of which has grown all the difficulties with Spain, completely exonerating Gen. Alvarez from any complicity therewith, as charged.

The ecclesiastical difficulty at Puebla had proved of a most serious character, and had been ended only by the interposition of the national arms and the arrest of a large number of citizens. Disturbances of similar and political character had taken place throughout the Republic. Several arrests of a political character had been made at Vera Cruz.

A revolution of a somewhat formidable character had broken out in the State of Guadaluajara, and was still progressing at last accounts. As to the progress of the revolution in Yucatan we have no intelligence in the papers before us.

The supreme government has published a decree, dated the 7th September, conceding to the Louisiana Company of Tehuantepec a privilege for the opening of an inter-oceanic communication on the Isthmus, having previously annulled the privilege granted to A. G. Sloo & Co.

The privilege will last fifty years, and the company is bound to establish, within seven years, two railroads from Ventosa and Goatzacoalos, and within ten years another to Acapulco.

The government has received information of an attempt at insurrection in La Paz, Lower California, by the soldiers at that place, who were tired of starvation. The Colonel in command of the place having been informed of the intention of the rebels, marched immediately with 50 men against the garrison, and succeeded in arresting and disarming them.—N. O. THE LADIES will find the handsomest stock of Riding Hats ever seen now at HAYES, CRAIG, & CO'S, whose taste is unrivaled in that line of goods. 229 1/2

THE ST. LOUIS FAIR.

WEDNESDAY, P. M., Sept. 30.

A night ride of over three hundred miles, in cars crowded to suffocation, is by no means conducive to freshness of thought or clearness of perception. I need only state, therefore, that we are here safe, if not sound, after having parted with Kentucky at 9 o'clock last night, and reached her daughter, Missouri, at noon to-day. The route over which we traveled is one of such great popularity that the public is well advised of its merits, its tales of time and distance, and other features. We came via the Jeffersonville road to Seymour under the care of conductor Wathen, and being joined some distance from the city by Dr. Crothers, the superintendent, who caused the hours to pass merrily enough.

We were favored throughout the long watches of the night with the full radiance of the red, round harvest moon. It kissed the rippling waves of the Ohio as we quitted home, and silvered with its clear and beautiful beams the placid Wabash just as day was breaking; the east with the faintest blush of rosy dawn. The night was one of thorough loveliness, the bracing, autumnal atmosphere being dashed with an infusion of frostiness—the first of the season—which sparkled like gems of purest ray serene upon the corn and other vegetation along the route. No damage, however, was anticipated from this visit of Jack Frost. The corn is too fully matured on the prairies of Indiana and Illinois to be injured. And such cornfields, such empires of cereal wealth, of agricultural productiveness, as we rushed through. Never did the old valley of the Nile, when most fertile, yield so bountifully. These prairies and valleys are indeed the garden-spots of the world, and so long as they produce their nodding, golden, glorious harvests the financial suffering of the nation is a certainty.

It was just sun up when we rushed into the grand prairie of Illinois, with all the pomp and circumstance of a triumphal procession. Out of the East, as if from the very midst of an ocean of beautiful flowers and tall, rank verdure, came forth the god of day. There were clouds in the sky, but they only intensified the beauty of the scene. I should require the pencil of Claude Lorraine to depict in fitting colors the matchless splendors of that sunrise on the prairies. Poetry, with her inspired harp, could scarcely hymn a description in numbers sufficiently rhythmic and harmonious. The memory of this glorious advent of the charioteer of the sky—of the deliciously cool morning air that fanned and relieved our fevered, wearied brows as we lingered upon the platform of the cars, and watched with wondering, admiring eyes the boundless seas of verdure, now hastening to decay—is with us yet, resting as a benison upon the fatigue of the night.

It was high noon when we came in view of the Father of Waters, now reduced to a comparatively small stream. Beyond, as if arising at the beck of the magician's wand, there started before our vision, the towers, the domes, and steeples of the mighty Queen of the West. We saw mile after mile of steamboats, and a wharf crowded and bustling and noisy, although these are but times. The journey from the depot on Bloody Island to the city is very tedious—the ferry-boats even exceeding in slowness those on the Jeffersonville and New Albany routes.

We found the city overflowing with people from all sections. The hotels have been yielding their utmost to the expansive necessities of the week, and can do nothing more. Had it not been for the cleverness of Dr. W. Strader, formerly of Louisville, who is keeping the Pacific Hotel, a pleasant establishment, we should not have been able to find even a place to cleanse our soiled and begrimed selves.

The fair is of course the great topic of remark, but monetary matters and the crash of financial affairs excite much attention. It is thought here however that the crisis is past. Confidence is being restored, and more cheerful countenances are to be seen on the business streets.

After seeing the fair grounds we shall tell you how great an exhibition they have here.

DECISIONS OF THE COURT OF APPEALS.

Reported for the Louisville Journal by John M. Harlan, Attorney at Law, Frankfort, Ky.

FRANKFORT, October 2.

CAUSES DECIDED.
Graves vs. Vail, Jefferson; affirmed.
Shreve vs. Wright, Jefferson; affirmed.
Shreve vs. Burkhart, Jefferson; affirmed.
Mark vs. Clarke, Montgomery; affirmed.
Daniel vs. Robinson, Montgomery; reversed.
Williams vs. Williams, Montgomery; reversed.

ORDERS.
Combs vs. Hawley, Jefferson; affirmed.
Commercial Bank vs. Benedict, Jefferson; affirmed.
King vs. Kellier, Jefferson; affirmed.
Luttrell vs. Mayville Railroad Co., from Mason Circuit.

The only question which arose in this case was in reference to the refusal of the court below to grant a new trial in favor of appellant.

The motion for a new trial was based upon two grounds: 1. That the verdict of the jury was "contrary to the instructions of the court, and against the weight of the testimony."

2. That, after the jury retired, a witness who had been examined on the trial was sent for by them, admitted into their room, and re-examined, without the knowledge or consent of the court or the parties.

This last ground of a new trial was established by the witness himself, who also stated that he was a witness for the appellant on the trial; that, when he went into the jury room, the jury had been there an hour or so, and that they were upon a verdict shortly after he left the room.

The court below was of the opinion that, although it was improper for the jury to send for and examine the witness out of court, still as he was the witness of the defendant, and the one upon whose testimony he mainly relied to establish his defense, and had been fully examined on the trial in reference to the same matters concerning which, as he states in his affidavit, he

SATURDAY EVENING, OCT. 3, 1857.

A Key of Specie Dug Up.—The Oswego Times of the 26th ult. tells the following story: Two men named respectively Ward and Hall, were at work down the lake shore, some miles from this city, getting out bog-iron, when they discovered a small keg buried in the sand. This they dug out, and on opening it found it contained sixteen hundred silver pieces. The coins were of an ancient French cast and of the denomination of seven franc pieces, valued at $1.09 each. The two men, with their treasure, have left for Philadelphia, where they intend to exchange their coin at the mint. It is probable that the money was secreted in that place where it was discovered by some French officer during the old French war, and afterwards the officer may have been killed, leaving no trace where the treasure was concealed.

Population of Canada.—According to the census taken in 1851, the total population of Lower Canada was 890,261, and of Upper Canada 952,004, making a grand total of 1,842,265. On the first of January, 1857, the estimated population, based upon official returns, was, of Lower Canada 1,220,514; of Upper Canada 1,350,923, making a grand total of 2,571,437, showing an increase, in between five and six years, of 729,172.

About twenty of the most incorrigible thieves in San Francisco were recently exhibited on the Plaza by the police. The exhibition was free, and was well attended by as many as three thousand citizens. The rogues were fastened, two by two, to a rope, which extended about thirty yards.

GREAT BARGAINS IN TRUNKS AT

J. H. McCleary's

NATIONAL TRUNK EMPORIUM,

Corner Main and Fourth sts., Louisville, Ky.

I would respectfully invite the attention of merchants and others visiting the city to my large and elegant assortment of TRUNKS, which I am prepared to offer at lower prices than any other establishment in the city. My stock embraces a greater variety of Trunk than is kept by any other house in the Western country. Many of the styles are entirely new and cannot fail to please those in want of a Trunk both as regards price and quality. The many advantages which I possess over the other houses in the city, such as manufacturing my own boxes, finishing my own leather, importing my own material, enable me to offer my trunks at much lower prices than any other establishment either in this city or Cincinnati. Merchants and others will be compensated for their own interests by giving me a call before making their purchases. Orders promptly attended to. (May 26 & 27 & 28 & 29 & 30 & 31)

BY TELEGRAPH.

Reported for the Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.
The Reading Railroad went to protest yesterday. Clarke, Dodge, & Co., of New York, have suspended service.

The Pennsylvania Bank will probably go into line with the other banks on Monday.

E. W. Clark & Co. announce that the suspension of Clarke, Dodge, & Co. will not interfere with their business.

NEW YORK, October 3.
At a meeting of the stockholders of the Erie Railroad, held last night, a resolution was adopted appointing a committee of one hundred to solicit from stock and bondholders subscriptions to the bonds or loans to the Company. It was stated that one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars had been subscribed during the evening. Convictions were expressed that if certain things were done Erie stock would advance almost to par.

Money market stringency.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.
Somebody got up a heartless hoax announcing the safety of Capt. Herndon and 16 of the passengers and crew of the Central America. Considerable excitement was caused thereby.

The Lomon slave case was argued before the Superior Court to-day.

The dormitory of the Wilbraham Wesleyan Academy was destroyed by fire on Tuesday night last. Loss, $70,000—insured for $20,000.

ALBANY, Oct. 1.
The Bank Superintendent, Cook, accepts Judge Davis's recent decision confirming the right of banking associations to reduce their securities deposited in the Bank Department below $100,000 by returning circulation. As the decision was concurred in by Judges Cranch and Wright, it was equal to an appeal to the full bench.

In consequence of this decision, the Bank Department have been busy for the last three days until a late hour in the evening receiving circulating notes, which are returned in very large amounts, and surrendering stocks. To-day the receipts of circulating notes at the Bank Department have been larger.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.
The suspension of Messrs. Lawrence, Stone, & Co. caused considerable excitement on State street to-day. Mr. Samuel Lawrence, senior partner, is in Europe, and Mr. Slade, the financial manager, is seriously ill. The firm are agents of the Bay State, Pemberton, New England, Worcester, and Middlesex mills. Ira A. Lowell, also connected with the Pemberton mills, is reported failed. The other failures announced are Benj. Howard, commission merchant, Central Wharf; Richardson, Kendall, & Co., dry goods, Milk street; and P. G. Jones, paper dealers, Water street. The banks did not count to-day, but not enough to ease the market.

MISTEROUS DEATH OF TWO PERSONS.—Coroner Peachy held a preliminary inquest, yesterday, over the bodies of Warren Canfield and his wife, who had died on Sunday evening, after a few days illness, from the supposed effects of poison swallowed by them. On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Canfield and the latter's sister partook of a supper, which consisted principally of bacon, pickle, milk, and honey. During the night all three were taken sick, with the exception of Mrs. C.'s sister, recovered sufficiently by the morning to resume their usual routine of duties. The former lady remained in her chamber, and was quite ill for several days. After breakfast, on Wednesday morning, Mrs. Canfield was again seized with the sickness of the previous night, and returned to bed. Mr. C. was similar affected a few hours afterwards. On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Canfield died. The other patient is convalescent, and is now considered out of danger. The coroner directed a post mortem examination to be made.—Richmond Weekly, Sept. 20.

An American Missionary's Experience in India.—The Rev. Mr. Hay, the American missionary, who, with his wife and children, narrowly escaped death in India from the mutinous Sepoys, and who has arrived in England, in the Indian mail packet Lipon, with his family, preached in the Independent Chapel, Above Bar, Southampton, on Sunday evening, the 6th ult., to a crowded congregation. He said the whole of the missionary property at Allahabad, worth $10,000, had been destroyed, and $30,000 worth in other parts belonging to the same society has been sacrificed.
